

We are recruiting 8 to 16-year-olds and their parent/legal guardian to help us understand how children and parents complete neuropsychological tests and questionnaires.

Q: What are the requirements to participate in this study?

- A parent/legal guardian must attend the research session with your 8- to 16-year-old
- Your child or adolescent must be able to listen to verbal instructions, draw simple shapes, and push computer keys in response to numbers on a computer screen.
- Children or adolescents with or without previous diagnosis of learning, attention, developmental, or psychological disorders are encouraged to participate.

Q: What will I have to do?

- The parent/legal guardian and the 8- to 16-year-old must attend one research session that will last 90 minutes at the Marquette University Center for Psychological Services at 604 N 16th Street Milwaukee, WI.
- Free parking is provided.
- During a test session your child/adolescent will answer questions, complete a drawing, a questionnaire, and a computer task.
- You will be asked to complete two paper-and-pencil questionnaires while your child/adolescent is in the test session.

Q: What will I receive for participating?

- The parent/legal guardian will receive $20 cash immediately following the session.
- Your child/adolescent will receive a junior researcher certificate, a McDonald's Be Our Guest coupon, and a prize from a prize box.

Q: What are the risks and benefits to participating?

- The risks for participation are very minimal and no greater than your child/adolescent encounters in day-to-day life (e.g. possible frustration with a school like tasks).
- You and your child/adolescent may enjoy participating in the study.
- This study could also benefit society by helping us understand how children/adolescents complete tests and questionnaires that will be used in clinical neuropsychological evaluations and improve clinical care provided to others

Q: How do I sign up?

- Please contact Elisabeth M. Vogt, M.S. at 414-288-7221 or via email at elisabeth.vogt@marquette.edu.
